Heliport Sites Scarce

A Necessary Explanation

DESULTORY discussion over heliport sites in the Greater Victoria area has not produced much yet that could be considered as practical. Heliports above all considerations must be nearly free from wind, their approaches open, and the ground itself clear from the smoke and flying cinders of, say, the sawmill district. For the latter reason the former brickfields on the east side of Douglas Street while they might be wind-free because of their level would not serve even if they were available or city-owned. Soot and cinders do not go with airfields.

Wind, strong and fairly unremitting throughout nine mouths of the year, would also rule out most of the year, would also rule out most of the vacant parcels of land on Shelbourne Street, one of the really open flats in the closes. of the really open flats in the close-in area. Nor is a heliport with approaches over the massed overhead wires of the downtown section to be thought of seriously. There is a close-in bend in the road on Burnside where it meets the Prospect Lake Road which is partly sheltered by trees and a hollow; but this, too, is private property and not in the city's possession. Rather than guess at it when the exact requirements of a heliport are

It is a good thing that this explanation

It is a good thing that this explanation is now on record, because some of the statements made and expressions used during discussion of the matter in open meeting of the council left the impression that the council was trying to tell the magistrate how to handle his job. The word "advise" was used. While it may be proper for a local council to talk over with the courts concerned any unusual problem of law enforcement, no one has authority to advise a magistrate or judge as to how he should dispose of cases brought before him. If the situation were otherwise the independence of the courts

A CORRESPONDENT has drawn attention to the dilapidated condition of the naval monuments in Pioneer Square. These old stones, dating from the early years of Victoria and of the naval station at Esquimalt, are badly weatherbeaten and the names on them almost lilegible: in a comparatively short time they will be unreadable. He suggests that someone should take sufficient interest to have them restored.

Probably no blame is now attachable to any specific source for their neglect but it is a matter for regret that they

but it is a matter for regret that they should have been allowed to deteriorate to their present state. In their own quiet way these monuments are part of the history of Victoria; the men they commemorate were among the guardians of the city's freedom and early growth. This old-time cemetery is now a small-sized public park of pleasing and neat appearance, although ironically that but serves still sketchily known here, the City might do well to enquire directly in aviation engineering circles. One_thing is certain, and this is that

One-fining is certain, and this is that the community is not going to accommodate helicopters with just "any old lot in any old place" whether or not it is the size of a city glock. The requirements will be found to be precise and mandatory: while the endeavor would have no meaning at all unless it were carried forward on a plane that would provide for the forces permanently and on a satisthe future permanently and on a satis-factory level. This means not a small but an extensive parcel of sheltered land, suitable chosen and with adequate flying approaches.

Some appear to be under the impression that because a helicopter can land on the roof of a flat-topped building this on the root of a flat-topped buttoning this would be provision enough. However that is merely where such a machine can land at times under calm conditions, and not where it has to park. A heliport is a helicopter park, an aerodrome in every heliconter park, an aerodrome in every essential detail if on rather smaller scale. As heliports may well become analogous to inter-city bus stations in the future. Greater Victoria will need at least one;

and their freedom from outside influence and their freedom from outside influence would be threatened.

Magistrates are not infallible, nor are the judges of higher courts. Machinery is provided for review of any decision in which there is thought to have been an error of judgment one way or the other, but that machinery does not include an approach by anyone to the person by whom the case was tried. Most certainly it does not permit a council to suggest to the court the degree of severity which should be applied in the sentencing of offenders who might appear before it at

The council's eoncern over misbehavior and destruction of property by juveniles is understandable, and is shared by many is understandable, and is shared by many private citizens. The tone of the recent discussion of the problem, however, did leave an impression that the council tended towards interference with the magistrate's jurisdiction, an impression strong enough to provoke objections from the Bar Association. The acting mayor's denial of any such intention will be well-carried therefore but the council has only to contrast sharply with the shabby state of the monuments.

Just who should interest themselves in Just who should interest themselves in the matter is perhaps none too clear. Since Pioneer Square is a civic park the local cemeteries board might with propriety assume some responsibility even if it is not its official obligation. The historical society might be able to project some attention in this direction. The naval veterans of the community, because of their kindred service, are another group mentioned by our correspondent in his

The subject is not one likely to create a stir, although of itself this could be con-

a struct as a somewhat significant com-mentary. Victoria has been none too meticulous in caring for the relics of its past. One hopes something will be done about these old naval monuments, how-

He is the biggest man in the group, with powerful shoulders. In an Empire Games sports magazine I saw the other day there's an old print of him running in an Irish meet, and here too the broad chest is noticeable. One sees of ribbons with ease as well as dis-

That is not quite the way mile races are reported nowadays, but the effect is the same. "Alex" became the Irish champion. What his time was, alas, there's no telling; the idea then was to win the race, not beat the clock. But he must have moved at a nifty pace. No one becomes a national mile champion unless he has

I fancy that while he watched Bannister run his historic mile his thoughts flew back forty years to his own great day at Ballsbridge, near

Under this plan, too, our govern-ment would insist on getting a share of the increased power output at American plants such as Grand Coulee and Bonneville which Canas dian reservoirs along the upper Co-lumbia would make possible. This increment is estimated to be four times as much power as will be obtained from the new $450,000,000 power development in the St. Lawr-

These harsh and unwarranted demands go far beyond anything con-templated in the Boundary Waters Treaty of 1909. . . . Cause of D'Ewart's ire is the Canadian government's statement in re-sponse to the new U.S. application sponse to the new U.S. application to the International Joint Commission for permission to construct a $300,000,000 dam across the Kootenay River at Libby, Mont.

Canada comes into the picture be cause the dam would back up the Cootenay into British Columbia for a distance of 24 miles, creating a take and flooding out timberland, mineral areas, homesteads, roads and rall lines. The Americans want to pay for this damage with dollars, but Ottawa and Victoria demand payment in electric power for anything Canada does which increases power output at U.S. generating plants.

This demand is in accordance with the "theory of down-stream bene-fits" to which the northwestern states. adhere in dealing among themselves over power produced in rivers which cross state boundaries. Roof Begins To Fall In

In Need of Restoration

BY J. M. ROBERTS, JR. Associated Press News Analysi

If Premier Mendes-France has gauged ac-curately what it will take to put the Euro-pean Defense Community through the French parliament there is grave doubt that there will any unified European army at all.

As long as it appeared that Mendes-France was working primarily with escape clauses to was working prinarily with escape causes to protect France against any collapse of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization or withdrawal of Anglo-American troops from Europe, the needed compromises seemed not too great.

But when it was disclosed that France was breaking away from the supra-national nature of the whole agreement, the roof began to fall in.

This supra-national quality of the treaty has been the glue which held the whole thing together from the start. Without it the small nations would be mere appendages, With it they would be equal partners in an international control of coal, steel and defense.

The loose association which would be left would permit France to veto all or part of any Germany part of the equal partnership which the nations, the United States and Britain included, once agreed was necessary for her if she were to play a proper role in European

10 JOHN NIAGARA Talks about: HOW TO GET A Friendly Loan

You know a lot of people the first time they come to Nisgara Finance worry about whether or not it's the right thing to do. It's quie true that we don't make a loan every time anybody walks through our doors. Frankly, we'd be out of husiness if we did. But you'd be surprised as the number of people who do get loans, and chances are good that if you need money, you can get it too. We've grown to be a big organization now but the men we have in our offices apread across Canada, we like to think, are prerty well trained. They're trained to solve your money problems, in a friendly way. So if you need money, why don't you drog no? There are two good reasons why you should, you know. The first is that our rates are lower on many friendly loans... the second is that loans up to $1500, are life-insured, for you family's protection, at no extra cost to you. We think that these features make our loans a hetter deal than you get down the ettered. Inquire, won't you?

Bewildered . . .

Instinct is a peculiar thing.

Man has always been puzzled by the uncanny instinct shown by the lower forms of life. Probably one of the most amazing examples is the unerring accuracy usually shown by racing pigeons in returning to their lofts.

But occasionally they do become bewildered.

A short while ago a group of pigeon racing fans gathered for a monster race; hundreds of birds were to compete. The hour arrived and off went the birds, straight for home. Everything was fine for a few miles . . . then something went haywire. It was as if a snell had been cast. Instinct and sense of direction vanished and the air filled with fluttering flapping pigeons, as lost as any sheep. A few got back on course . . . but most never did get home.

What happened? No one can say for sure, but maybe the nearby radar station was the culprit. Perhaps it "jammed" the pigeons "wave length".

Sometimes investors are thrown "off course" too : 1; and they are puzzled as to what to do. That's where we come in. Plotting investment courses . . 1 or helping people get "back on course" is part of our business . . . has been for years.

Here at Ames we think you'll find the kind of people you'll like to do business with . . . experienced people who can help you make decisions to suit your personal investment needs.
